The IDS received 2/27/02 has been entered and claims 1-6 are currently pending in this application. Please update the status of related cases in the specification. No priority documents are found in the file.

Claim 6 is objected to under 37 CFR 1.75(c) as being in improper form because a multiple dependent claim cannot depend from any other multiple dependent claim. See MPEP § 608.01(n). Accordingly, the claim 6 has not been further treated on the merits.

A rejection based on double patenting of the "same invention" type finds its support in the language of 35 U.S.C. 101 which states that "whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process ... may obtain a patent therefor ..." (Emphasis added). Thus, the term "same invention," in this context, means an invention drawn to identical subject matter. See Miller v. Eagle Mfg. Co., 151 U.S. 186 (1894); In re Ockert, 245 F.2d 467, 114 USPQ 330 (CCPA 1957); and In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970).

A statutory type (35 U.S.C. 101) double patenting rejection can be overcome by canceling or amending the conflicting claims so they are no longer coextensive in scope. The filing of a terminal disclaimer cannot overcome a double patenting rejection based upon 35 U.S.C. 101.

Claims 1-6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 as claiming the same invention as that of claims 2-8, 26 of prior U.S. Patent No. 6,329,548. This is a double patenting rejection.

Art Unit: 1651

Claims 1-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

The term 'acid radical' is indefinite as to what may be intended. Claims 1-5 are directed to an aqueous solution containing an acid radical. Claim 3 then recites the acid radical as being "the chloride radical (Cl-) and/or the sulfate radical (SO<sub>4</sub>-2)" and claims 4-5 similarly refer to these specific "acid radicals". Chloride and sulfate radicals are basic rather than acidic radicals. It is therefore unclear what is meant by the term "acid radical". Further, the term radical is queried in context and ion may be intended if appropriate.

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1 and 3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by SU 171727.

SU 17127A discloses that lysine is stabilized in a liquid by the addition of non-toxic acids such as hydrochloric acid and that this liquid is suitable for addition to animal feed. That the addition of hydrochloric acid increased the solubility of lysine in the liquid is not specifically disclosed but is inherent. The addition of hydrochloric acid results in a liquid containing the chloride anion; the presence of the chloride anion inherently results in an increased solubility of lysine.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 2, 4 and 5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over SU 171727.

See the teachings of SU 171727 above.

SU 171727 does not teach any specific percentage of chloride radical.

Art Unit: 1651

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art to have kept the content of the acid relative to lysine at a low level in order to avoid synthesis of the acid salt of lysine. Furthermore, although the use of sulfuric acid is not specifically taught, the addition of the hydrochloric acid is taught. It therefore would have been obvious to have substituted hydrochloric acid with another inorganic acid such as sulfuric acid.

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Spindler (4,919,945) teaches aqueous lysine solutions.
